25 Cornhill Boston

My dear Deborah

I have been religously keeping a journal for you all this week and meant to have sent it to you to day, but William Coffin and Mr Emerson called with a letter from Anne this morning, and I felt compelled to send my journal to the poor thing. I hear Papa is going to take one of us out to Weymouth when he comes in & should be happy to go out with him, provided he comes in after Monday, I want to stay Monday to go to Parkers lecture. The slaves case is not tried to day on account of Judge Storey sickness. Maria has been very busy to day collecting money for the Standard, she collected about $50 and Wendell $100. the Standard being in great distress for money. William F. Channing the Dr nephew, came this morning and brought quite a good piece for the Belle a story called "A Day in Kentucky" very good a perfect souvenir story. They talk of getting out a writ against the gaoler and sheriff for holding Latimer unlawfully. They had a very enthusiastic meeting at Lynn, Leavitt went down, but was received with great coldness, the friend's from Boston were received at the depot gladly, and there stood Leavitt with no one to receive him - and Garrison had to entreat one of the friends to take him in. this afternoon Emma and I are going to take tea with Henriette. she told us to invite the Miss Southwick's and Elizabeth Mecall, Harvey, and any other young man we wanted. I am most afraid to send this ink-nothing more in it but I really cant sit tilted up on a high stool in the office vis à vis to Williams any longer.

Yours ever Lucia Merton

Papa better not come till Wednesday. if he comes Monday I shant come back with him.
